5A Introduction to Architecture & Environment     MW 930-1045 IV THEATER 2 Welter

Architecture is the primeval act through which human beings carve out for themselves a place in nature. Initially a means of survival, place-making has developed throughout history into technically advanced and artistically sophisticated architectural designs that intertwine ever closer the man-made world with the natural one. This course introduces basic architectural construction methods, design strategies, and subject specific terminology, discusses various interpretative concepts, and poses questions after universal fundamentals of the multi-faceted and multi-sensory relationships between man, architecture, and nature.

111B  Dutch Art in the Age of Rembrandt and Frans Hals. The Birth of a Nation: 1579 - 1648  TR  330-445  ARTS 1341  Adams

Prerequisite: one History of Art & Architecture course or equivalent. Not open to freshmen.

The first half of the seventeenth century in Holland, the period from the Union of Utrecht of 1579 and its declaration of independence from Spain, to the recognition of the Northern Netherlands as an independent nation in 1648, was the first part of a century that has come to be known as the Dutch "Golden Age" of Dutch art. This era witnessed the emergence of a Protestant mercantile culture in which the Catholic Church and the hereditary nobility were supplanted by democratic institutions and middle-class merchants as major patrons of the arts. These men and women supported such artists as Rembrandt van Rijn and Frans Hals as well as a host of lesser known masters who created images rooted in everyday life rather than the imaginary religious, historical, and mythological imagery of previous centuries. This course examines the cultural functions of this rich, apparently descriptive imagery as it helped to form the private identities and public ambitions of Europe's first middle-class capitalist society. We examine the aesthetics and content of this imagery through contemporary economic, historic, religious, and literary developments, and the emerging scientific revolution.

The emphasis in this class is upon the social and intellectual issues engaged by Dutch painting: how they participated in the struggle between the values of a new middle-class and capitalist culture in conflict with an older way of life. At the same time, it examines the varieties of art historical methods employed by contemporary scholars, as well as those of the past, to understand these images. The goal of the course is to give students a solid grounding in knowledge about seventeenth century Dutch art and culture, with a focus upon critical analysis of images as well as the structure of arguments that have been made about them. These skills are intended to be ones that you may be able to apply both in other courses, as well as information you encounter and arguments you construct in your daily life.

134D  Art and Modern China     TR   200-315   ARTS 1341   Sturman

Special Topic: Debating Globalization

Prerequisite: not open to freshmen.

In this special iteration of Art in Modern China we will debate developments in Chinese art from the end of the Qing dynasty to recent times with a focus on the evolution of strategies to produce art in the face of foreign challenges. While the primary discourse of visual production concerns modernization and its relation to tradition, the course will look beneath the surface of this bipolar model to examine art production as a response to perceived power differentials in a world of dizzying change. The course will take full advantage of a special exhibition of two contemporary artists, Arnold Chang and Michael Cherney, whose individual and collaborative work on the subject of landscape highlight issues of identity and environment in our shrinking world. The course is also timed to coincide with Ai Weiwei’s three new exhibitions in LA.

141G  The Architecture of Museums and Galleries from c. 1800 to the Present     MW   1230-145   ARTS 1341   Welter
Prerequisite: not open to freshmen.

Discusses the history of museums and galleries as distinct modern building types by analyzing their architectural developments from approximately 1800 to the present. Beside architectural design issues (sequence of galleries, display of exhibits, lighting, visitor routes, etc.), the course analyzes museums as sites of memory, their intersections with the modern city, and their roles in cultural and societal debates. Geographically, the course focuses on both the museum’s origin in Europe and its contemporary universal presence.

<td>From reproductive prints to urban centers, understanding the process of cultural references to known “originals,” lies at the heart of our art historical project. This seminar examines changing beliefs about and attitudes toward the concept of reproduction, from the copy created as part of the learning process through intentional forgeries, and the slippery reproductions that in today's digital age of “Fake News” take on new significance. With a focus on early modern Europe we will examine changing historical attitudes toward authenticity, and then consider these in light of case studies drawn from course participants' areas of interest (art, architecture or literature, antiquity through the 21st century).</td>

<td>In the identity politics that underlie much of modern Chinese art, a major focal point is ink, shuimo. One of the defining components of what came to be known in the 20th century as national painting, guohua, and conversely a medium to differentiate from Western oil painting, ink shouldered an essentialist weight in the struggle to modernize Chinese painting. Ink was intrinsically Chinese, quotidian yet amenable to rhapsodic philosophizing. It was the substance that gave virtual shape to the politics of art. This seminar will utilize ink as a thematic frame to explore strategies employed by Chinese modernist artists of the 20th century as they sought their place on a global stage. Focusing in particular on post-war “second-generation” modernist painters, most of whom were active outside of China, we will be particularly interested in how the painter’s craft helped delineate a sense of national space, and how that coordinated with the reality of displacement. The seminar is an initial step in a possible exhibition, and we will be working with objects in local and LA collections. The ability to read Chinese is welcome though not essential. Interested students should contact Professor Sturman (sturman@ucsb.edu).</td>

The History of Art in China is a survey course that introduces the major traditions and monuments of Chinese art from Neolithic times to the modern (20th-21st centuries). The course generally follows a chronological trajectory but with a thematic matrix. The first part of the course, from Neolithic to Han (ca. 5000 BC - AD 220) concerns the formation of culture and civilization and covers early pottery and bronze traditions as well as the beginnings of pictorial art. Objects and pictures are placed into their historical, philosophical, and social contexts. The second part of the course focuses on the importation and development of Buddhist art, from ca. AD 200 - 1000. The third part of the course interweaves the painting, calligraphy, and ceramic traditions of imperial China, from the Song dynasty to the near contemporary. Garden design and imperial architecture are also introduced. One of the aspects of the course that will be emphasized is regional diversity and intercultural encounters (India and Central Asia in particular). The title, History of Art in China, as opposed to something like The Arts of China, is intended to convey awareness of the fact art is a conceptual and subjective term and that objects have histories that extend beyond national borders.

This course offers a wide-ranging introduction to architecture and urban design from the earliest human constructions to the middle of the 20th century. The focus is decidedly global in the first half of the course, and more European in the second half. Students will encounter a variety of buildings and cities, but also different ways of understanding and studying them. Student writing assignments will involve the analysis of local architecture and town planning.

Prerequisite: not open to freshmen.

For Winter 2019, enrollment by department invitation only during Pass 1; remaining seats offered during Pass 2. Qualifies for Letters & Science Honors credit.

Californian architecture is characterized by a large variety of revival styles which reference ways of building from other geographic locations, time periods, and people.

What motivates the eclectic, mixed appearance of much of Californian architecture? Geographical or climatic conditions? Political powers (Spanish, Mexican, American) that have governed modern California? Do revival styles follow immigrants into California? Do they express the identity of the designer, the builder, or the occupier and user of a building?

The course examines the history of revival styles in especially Southern Californian architecture from approximately the eighteenth century to the mid-twentieth century. Historic and contemporary theories of what drives the choice of architectural styles will be introduced.

Art history is in the midst of a turn towards the “Global.” In the case of early modern European art, this approach has been critiqued as reinforcing traditional canonical hierarchies within the discipline, rather than challenging them. How do/can art historians and curators construct balanced presentations of “Global” narratives? Using examples of exhibitions hosted by American museums, this seminar will analyze approaches taken to this theme over the last ten years. In the course of the term, we will examine the organization and display of images and objects from a range of cultures and geographic regions to investigate the meaning of the “Global” in relation to Western art and the early modern period.

Prerequisite: graduate standing.

This seminar will explore the hierarchies and histories that exist between trained artists and outlier artists—artists that have been variously label “outsiders” for a variety of reasons, such as being self-taught, mentally ill, non-white/rural/poor, and otherwise marginalized—in their assessment, visibility, and circulation. We take, as our starting point, Lynne Cooke’s exhibition Outliers and American Vanguard Art, on view at LACMA from November 18, 2018 to March 18, 2019, which we will visit as a class, and which is the subject of a symposium I am co-organizing for the museum on Friday, March 1, 2018, which students will be required to attend in lieu of class that week.

Topic: Art, Activism, and Autonomy in Times of Crisis

Prerequisite: graduate standing.

Same course as GER 270; cross-listed with C LIT 200 & ART 245

One of the most powerful contestations of the autonomy of art—the idea that art and literature are separate by nature from everyday life—was issued by the philosopher T. W. Adorno when he questioned whether “after Auschwitz” poetry could still be written. In recent years, there has been renewed interest in the problem of art’s autonomy, especially on the part of Marxist critics who critique the pervasive commodification and co-optation of art and argue for the need to reinstate its independence in some form. Yet, how can autonomous art provide much-needed resistance to the pervasive oppression and discrimination we are witnessing all around us? The seminar will seek to provide both a historical reconstruction of artistic autonomy (Schiller, Kant) and read the work of contemporary philosophers and historians who have considered the issue (Boris Arvatov; Vladimir Nabokov; T. W. Adorno; Peter Bürger; John Roberts; Alain Badiou; Jacques Rancière; Peter Osborne; Jürgen Habermas). Discussions are supplemented by the consideration of the work of contemporary artists and writers in whose practice the problem of autonomy and its practicality comes to the fore.

Spring 2019

History of Western art from the eighteenth century to the present.

GE: AREA E, AREA F, EUROPEAN TRADITIONS, WRITING

ENROLLMENT BY DISCUSSION SECTION

HONORS SECTION: T 200-250 ARTS 1332

Surveys the arts of Japan and the Korean peninsula from pre-historic to contemporary times. The focus is on the evolving role of the artist within society.

GE: AREA F, WORLD CULTURES, WRITING

ENROLLMENT BY DISCUSSION SECTION

This course provides a general introduction to the indigenous and contemporary arts of Africa, Oceania, and Native North America. In these vast locales of human culture, we will study how art provides concrete conceptual and visual structures around which social, political, cultural aesthetic and ritual institutions are constructed. The art object, imbued with several meanings, is essential to the human lifecycle, charged with political, economic and spiritual connotations and instrumental to rituals of birth, death and all the stages of transition in between. In such contexts, art operates within spaces of performance and individual art objects are imbued with multiple meanings. We will investigate the historical nature of different art traditions in these cultures and evaluate specific art forms like painting, sculpture, mural painting, textiles and decorative arts, body adornment, masquerade performances, royal/leadership arts, and sacred, secular and vernacular architecture.

6L Playful Spaces: A Cultural History of Games     MW 1230-145 LBL 1001 White

This course introduces students to the history of games. It is organized chronologically as a global survey. We study games and the social, political, and economic conditions that support them, as well as the interface between the human player and the imagined world of the game. Taking as its premise that games are artifacts of culture, this course focuses on the visual and spatial practice of games in social context.

ENROLLMENT BY DISCUSSION SECTION

105O The Global Middle Ages: Visual and Cultural Encounters in the Medieval Mediterranean     MW 200-315 ARTS 1341 Badamo

Prerequisite: upper-division standing.

Focusing on the Mediterranean, this course considers visual manifestations of exchange. Its goal is to examine the complexity of religious, political, and visual interactions in the Middle Ages, a period that brought together diverse religious communities, generating both social frictions and new cultural forms. Students will study the dynamic interplay among Christian, Jewish, and Islamic visual cultures as they developed and coalesced through commerce, gift exchange, the reinterpretation of pre-existing forms, and the reuse of objects and spaces.

105P Introduction to Medieval Art and Architecture     MW 1100-1215 ARTS 1332 Badamo

Topic: Soaring Cathedrals and Stunning Visions

Prerequisite: upper-division standing.

For Spring 2019, enrollment by department invitation only during Pass 1; remaining seats offered during Pass 2. Qualifies for Letters & Science Honors credit.

This course explores the soaring cathedrals, monstrous sculptures, and marvelous images that inspired The Lord of the Rings, Game of Thrones, and tales of King Arthur. Beginning with the fourth-century rise of Christian images and ending with the advent of print, it traces how images and architecture developed new roles—and reinvented old ones—over the course of the Middle Ages. Investigating architecture, sculpture, and manuscripts in their historical contexts, it asks why medieval objects look the way they do and how viewers saw them. We will also devote significant time to the continuities left to us from the Middle Ages that inform our own cultural production. Through our examination of medieval and contemporary cultural production, we will develop a critical approach to the way we think about—and use—the medieval past.

107C Renaissance Kunst- and Wunderkammern: The First Museums     MW 330-445 ARTS 1341 Travers

Prerequisite: not open to freshmen.

In the sixteenth century, wealthy merchants and powerful princes in Europe began assembling vast collections that aspired to contain all possible knowledge of all possible things. From these remarkably diverse collections—called Kunst- and Wunderkammern (German), studioli (Italian), and curiosity cabinets (English)—arose our modern museums of art, science, history and technology, as well as modern research collections in universities.
This course explores these fascinating collections, the purposes that they served and the circumstances in which they were created.

107D   Puzzles and Vexations: Games in Early-Modern Art and Culture     MW   1230-145   ARTS 1341   Faust

Prerequisite: not open to freshmen.

Explores the fascinating profusion of games in early-modern Europe, ca. 1400-1700, including card games, board games, and visual, mechanical and mathematical puzzles. Topics include the role of fate and chance; the phenomenon of puzzle pictures; illusionism and other eccentric images; and the social and moral implications of games.

117F   Impressionism and Post-Impressionism     MW   200-315   HSSB 1174   Garfinkle

Prerequisite: not open to freshmen.

Impressionist and Post-Impressionist movements in France from 1863 through the first decade of the twentieth century and the advent of Cubism. Includes the work of Monet, Manet, Degas, Renoir, Pissarro, Van Gogh, Cezanne, Gauguin, and Seurat.

GE: AREA F

121B   Reconstruction, Renaissance, and Realism in American Art: 1860 - 1900     TR   330-445   ARTS 1341   Garfinkle

Prerequisite: not open to freshmen.

Painting within the context of the human-made environment, from the onset of the Civil War to just before World War I, tracing the role of art in the rise of modern, corporate and industrial America.

GE: AREA F, AMERICAN HISTORY AND INSTITUTIONS

121E   Three-Dimensional Arts of the United States: Meaning, Context, Reception     TR   1230-145   ARTS 1341   Garfinkle

Prerequisite: not open to freshmen.

From Puritan gravestones to park fountains to war memorials, American sculpture has been a barometer of the political, cultural, religious and artistic trends of our society. This course covers the carvings of the first settlements, figural sculpture of colonial America, various art movements and sculptural forms from the nineteenth to twenty-first centuries as well as the current controversies surrounding public art.

GE: AREA F

130C   The Arts of Spain and New Spain     TR   200-315   ARTS 1341   Engel

[CANCELLED]

130D   Pre-Columbian Art of South America     TR   330-445   ARTS 1341   Engel

[CANCELLED]

132I   Art of Empire     TR   1100-1215   ARTS 1341   Khoury

Prerequisite: not open to freshmen.
Studies the visual culture of different empires, alone or in a comparative fashion. For example, Ottoman and Hapsburg; Ottoman, Safavid, and Mughal; Mughal and British India; or the earlier empire of the Fatimids, Abbasids, and Umayyads of Syria and Spain.

GE: AREA F

134E  The Art of the Chinese Landscape   TR   500-615   ARTS 1341   Kim

Prerequisite: not open to freshmen.

Chinese approaches to landscape as subject matter in art, with a focus on painting and garden architecture. The course begins with the immortality cult in the Han dynasty (206 BCE - CE 221) and ends with contemporary artists of the twentieth century.

GE: AREA F, WORLD CULTURES

136J  Landscape of Colonialism   TR   930-1045   ARTS 1341   Chattopadhyay

Prerequisite: not open to freshmen.

Examination of architecture, urbanism and the landscape of British and French colonialism between 1600 and 1950. Introduction to the different forms of colonialism, colonial ideology and the architecture of colonial encounter in North America, Asia, Africa and Australia.

GE: AREA F, WORLD CULTURES

136Q  Deviant Domesticities   TR   200-315   ARTS 1341   White

Prerequisite: not open to freshmen.

We take the suburban landscape and its module of the single-family detached house for granted, as though it was somehow a "natural" landscape form, unmindful of its laborious two hundred year invention. It is a landscape pattern that now poses an acute challenge to ecological and economic sustainability. This course is premised on the notion that we can't hope to unravel this complex problem without both a historical and an architectural analysis.

The architecture profession in the United States has embraced the need for a "green," or sustainable, architecture, but its concern has mainly been technological. Can the concept of "green" apply to family and community structure, and not just to the construction of buildings? The suburban low-density landscape has long been cited as un-green, but what are the dense alternatives? In this course we shall ponder "green" implications at the scale of home and community, and our primary subject of study will be the suburban landscape and its many deviations, including Isla Vista.

141D  Birth of the Modern Museum   MW   1100-1215   ARTS 1341   Paul

Prerequisite: not open to freshmen.

Course examines the emergence and development of museums of art in eighteenth-century Europe, tracing their origins to the private collections from which they evolved and studying the practices, such as tourism, that stimulated their growth.

GE: AREA F

143F  Exploring the Holdings of the ADC   MW   200-315   ARTS 1332   Bacinu

Prerequisite: not open to freshmen.
The course is developed in co-operation with the Architecture & Design Collection (ADC) and marks the inauguration of HAA’s new vault for archival studies. As such, it is not only designed to give an introduction to archival research, but also highlight the differences between the physical and the virtual. The museum holdings dedicated to the work of the architects R.M. Schindler and Cliff May will accompany us on the quest of understanding the difference between the material qualities of the architect’s work and their impact on culture at large.

186E  Seminar in Fifteenth and Sixteenth Century Northern European Art  M  300-550  ARTS 2622  Faust
Topic: Eccentric Image

Prerequisite: upper-division standing.
May be repeated for credit to a maximum of 8 units with different topic. Open only to History of Art & Architecture majors during Pass 1.

Anthropomorphic landscapes, anamorphic and composite portraits, pictorial stones, and trompe l’œil paintings of early-modern Europe (ca. 1400–1800) present perceptual and conceptual challenges. Some images are not what they appear to be; others appear to be what they are not or change before the eyes. Approaching such eccentric images according to their historical reception and the tasks they offer to viewing subjects, this seminar explores questions concerning cognition, artifice, and human and divine creativity. Confronting labels such as curiosities, caprices, and optical toys, we will examine these images’ engagement with contemporary notions of paradox and mutable forms. Course readings emphasize early-modern objects, but students are welcome to address images produced in other cultures and eras.

GE: WRITING

186F  Seminar in Fifteenth and Sixteenth Century Southern Renaissance  TR  1100-1215  ARTS 1332  Gilmore
Topic: Body and Religion in Late Medieval and Renaissance Italy

Prerequisite: upper-division standing.
May be repeated for credit to a maximum of 8 units with different topic. Open only to History of Art & Architecture majors during Pass 1.

Bleeding crucifixes. Weeping and sweating paintings. Sweet-smelling saintly bones. This course will examine these intersections and others that occurred between the body, material culture, and religious practices in late medieval and Renaissance Italy. Students will study the performances and forms of sensory engagement that surrounded religious objects and enlivened sacred spaces. They will also consider the representation and marginalization of the bodies of the disenfranchised. The course surveys a wide range of objects and monuments that people encountered on an intimate level: miraculous images, reliquaries, votive offerings, dioramas, pilgrimage sites, and painted panels used to comfort prisoners.

GE: WRITING

186Q  Seminar in Islamic Art and Architecture  R  200-450  ARTS 2622  Khoury

Prerequisite: upper-division standing.
May be repeated for credit to a maximum of 8 units with different topic. Open only to History of Art & Architecture majors during Pass 1.

Advanced studies in Islamic art and architecture. Topics will vary. This course requires weekly readings and discussion, and the writing of a research seminar paper.

GE: WRITING

187W  Coming Home: The House Museum as Cultural Encounter  M  800-1050  ARTS 1332  White
This seminar studies the political and cultural history of the house museum in the United States, from its antebellum beginnings in the nineteenth century to the present. Explores a variety of issues related to the house museum, including curatorial and design choices, visitor experiences, and the House Museum Movement.

Survey: History of Art in China (session B)

The History of Art in China is a survey course that introduces the major traditions and monuments of Chinese art from Neolithic times to the modern (20th-21st centuries). The course generally follows a chronological trajectory but with a thematic matrix. The first part of the course, from Neolithic to Han (ca. 5000 BC - AD 220) concerns the formation of culture and civilization and covers early pottery and bronze traditions as well as the beginnings of pictorial art. Objects and pictures are placed into their historical, philosophical, and social contexts. The second part of the course focuses on the importation and development of Buddhist art, from ca. AD 200 - 1000. The third part of the course interweaves the painting, calligraphy, and ceramic traditions of imperial China, from the Song dynasty to the near contemporary. Garden design and imperial architecture are also introduced. One of the aspects of the course that will be emphasized is regional diversity and intercultural encounters (India and Central Asia in particular). The title, History of Art in China, as opposed to something like
The Arts of China, is intended to convey awareness of the fact art is a conceptual and subjective term and that objects have histories that extend beyond national borders.
